Yet, for some reason, students are rarely given opportunity to acquire facility in these lines, the result being that too many of our scientists and engineers go about their work without such equipment. It would be almost impossible to enumerate the variety of ways in which the ideas relating to these subjects adapt themselves to even such simple bits of quantitative work as the chemist or the surveyor is daily called upon to do. And it is difficult for the writer to imagine how an elaborate research in any of the exact sciences can be carried on at all, without the constant application of these principles throughout both the preliminary and the final stages of the work. The satisfaction to be gained from the application of the theory of precision alone is well worth all the time necessary to acquire these subjects.
