Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Obedience to the Law: An Address at the Opening of Petigru College in Columbia, South Carolina; June 9, 1919 Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: - It is with great pleasure that I find myself again in Columbia, for I hold in very grateful remembrance the warm welcome that I received some sixteen years ago when I came here to address the Bar Association of South Carolina. What I said then was received more cordially by my auditors than it would have been in my native State of Massachusetts, though what I preached was the faith of the men who founded this great republic. What I say to-day should, in my judgment, be accepted wherever men are civilized, for it is the faith without which civilization cannot endure. I rejoice that the occasion which calls me here is the dedication of a new building for the teachers of law, for there never was a time in the history of the world when it was more important to teach the knowledge of and respect for the law. It is inevitable that during such a war as has just ended the restraints of law should be weakened, for, as Sydney Smith said, In war, God is forgotten, and human law suffers with the divine; but never within the memory of man has every existing system of law been affected so radically as now. Autocracy in Russia, Austria, Germany, and Turkey, its strongholds in Europe, has been overthrown, and the monarchs of Bulgaria and Greece as well as of all the smaller German states have abandoned their thrones. Bolshevism controls Russia and threatens all its neighbors, and no one...
